ABSTRACT

The materials status report for Thai is one of a series intended to provide the nonspecialist with a picture of the availability and quality of texts for teaching a given language to English speakers. The report consists of: (1) a brief narrative description of the language, the areas where it is spoken, its major dialects, its writing system, points of difficulty for the English-speaking learner, usable texts, availability of instructional programs, linguists who have worked on the language, native speakers, and other information of use to the individual planning a course in the language; (2) a bibliography of materials, categorized as basic level teaching materials, advanced level teaching materials, refresher/maintenance materials, reference materials, and dictionaries, according to evaluators' judgment of their best use in classes today rather than according to the author's intentions; and (3) individual materials evaluations consisting of a general description, including publication information, an overview of the contents, and statements about the quality of the language used, and a form on which the general text quality (language and presentation) is evaluated. The evaluations are made by native speakers and linguists recognized for their knowledge of the language. (MSE)

Materials Status Reports - General Description

This Materials Status Report is one of forty-one prepared by the Language and Area Reference Center, Center for Applied Linguistics, for the members of the Interagency Language Roundtable, under Contract No. 1735-507041 between CAL and the Foreign Service Institute, Department of State.

The purpose of the reports is to provide the non-specialist with a picture (as of 1985) of the availability and quality of texts teaching the language(s) to English speakers. Reports have been prepared for the following languages:

Afghan Persian (Dari)	Bengali	Indonesian	Sinnalese
Afrikaans	Berber (all dialects)	Kongo	Somali
Amharic	Bulgarian	Kurdish	Shona
Arabic/Libyan	Burmese	Korean	Slovak
Arabic/Saudi	Cambodian	Lao	Tagalog
Arabic/Gulf	Czech	Malay	Thai
Arabic/Sudanese	Dutch	Mongolian	Tigrinya
Armenian	Finnish	Ngala	Uigur
Azerbaijani	Hausa	Pashto	Vietnamese
Baluchi	Hindi	Portuguese	Xhosa
			Zulu

The Materials Status Reports consist of:

1. A one- or two-page narrative description of the language, the areas where it is spoken, its major dialects, its writing system, points of difficulty for the English-speaking learner, usable texts, availability of programs, linguists who have worked on the language, native speakers, and other information of use to the individual or agency planning a course in the language.

2. A bibliography of materials, grouped as follows: Basic Level Teaching Materials; Advanced Level Teaching Materials; Refresher/Maintenance Materials; Reference Materials; and Dictionaries. The terms "basic level" and "advanced level" are defined by the government-wide proficiency levels: materials bringing the student to proficiency level 2 in speaking and/or reading are categorized as "basic", whereas materials bringing the student to levels higher than 2 are categorized as "advanced". The dictionaries listed are bilingual dictionaries with English as one of the languages. Materials are categorized according to our evaluators' judgment as to their best use in classes today, and not according to the authors' intentions; e.g. a good traditional grammar-translation text will be categorized as reference, rather than as basic teaching materials.

All materials known to us are listed in the bibliography. For the more uncommon languages, e.g. Uigur, all sources have been evaluated (if we were able to find them). For the more common languages, e.g. Finnish, we did not evaluate pre-World War II materials except for widely-acknowledged classics. Unevaluated materials are listed alphabetically by author at the end of the bibliography.

3. Individual materials evaluations for each of the texts listed in the bibliography. A particular evaluation consists of a general description, including publication information, an overview of the contents, and statements about the quality of the language used; a "meta-criteria" form by which the general quality of the text, in terms of language taught and overall quality of presentation, are evaluated. More specific information is presented, on following forms, for those texts which have been judged to be of reasonable quality. The evaluations have been made by native speakers of the languages, and by linguists/language teachers recognized for their knowledge of the languages.

We have discovered, in the process of developing the Materials Status Reports, that the same set of materials will frequently appear under different editions and reprintings, and also under different titles, different publishers, and even different authors. In these cases, we generally choose the most recently appeared set for evaluation, and discuss the publication history on the description page of the individual evaluation. Occasionally, we are aware of later editions from the one we have access to; the existence of the later edition is also mentioned on the description page.

The Materials Status Reports are available from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service.

Language, dialects, standards. Thai is the official and national language of Thailand. Major dialects are Northern, North-eastern (which is very close to the Lao language), Southern, and Central. Standard Thai is more or less the Central dialect. The dialects are mutually intelligible, with some differences in tones and pronouns in the less intelligible dialects. Thai is somewhat mutually intelligible with Lao.

Writing system. Thai is written in a script unique to the language. The script is standardized. Written Thai does not differ markedly from spoken Thai.

Production of written language. Thai typewriters are readily available in Thailand, as is type-setting. Computer type fonts have probably been developed in Thailand.

Difficulty for English-speaking learners.

Phonology: Thai has tones, which are difficult. Other than that, no special problems.

Syntax: Thai is SVO; easy at the beginning, but on the advanced level becomes more difficult.

Vocabulary: some technical terms are borrowed from English.

Writing system: difficult at first, but relatively well-representative of pronunciation.

Usable existing texts. Many, among the best of which are:

Basic level: Anthony, Foundations Thai I
Anthony, Reading Thai Syllables
Brown, AUA Course
Brown, Reading and Writing
Palmer, Dialog Books A and B
Peace Corps, Basic Course

Advanced level: Jones, Readers

Refresher/maintenance: none

Reference: Kuo, Teaching Grammar

Dictionaries: Haas, Thai-English Dictionary
Haas, Thai Vocabulary

Electronic materials: none

Existing programs, classes: At FSI and DLI. Biggest programs at Cornell, U. of Hawaii. Capability at many other universities.

Native speaker availability: Several thousand Thais in the United States, studying or working. Many Thais have PhD.'s in linguistics; they are all apparently in Thailand at various universities.

Linguist resources: Marvin Brown, AUA in Bangkok; R. B. Jones, Cornell; Ed Anthony, Pittsburgh; Warren Yates, FSI retired; Thomas Gething, U. Hawaii-Manoa.

Comments: This text has two objectives: to teach a ~~start~~ person to read Thai and to provide some phonetic + grammatical information about Thai + some useful vocabulary. It is difficult to see how a person could reach either of these objectives using this poorly organized and presented text.

Comments: This text follows very carefully the audio-lingual approach. It limits what a student hears and says to her/his memorized level and does not help develop coping skills, and by limiting comprehensible input it does not further acquisition of Thai.

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: to be used with an audio-lingual course

Presentation of language: Phonemic notation of Haas' and Subhenka's Spoken Thai into Thai symbols.

Physical quality of book: n/a

Editorial quality of target language: Excellent

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text:

[xi, 131pp]

Phonological summary

The consonant letters; diphthong symbolization; special symbolizations for vowel and consonant; consonant cluster symbolization; leading consonant letters; miscellanea; Appendices

Four tests included in text.

Vocabulary areas covered: n/a "Reading" is here meant to be the ability to relate syllables written in the Thai alphabet to Thai sounds and tones.

General comments: This course was developed for use with an intensive course in Thai using an audio-lingual approach. The relationships of syllables to words and their lexical meanings, and to their grammatical structures are assumed to be taken up elsewhere.

Comments:

These texts provide the cultural as well as the non-linguistic information necessary for appropriate linguistic behavior. There are sufficient grammatical and phonological drills to develop some degree of automaticity and acceptable pronunciation. They are not designed to develop coping skills as such. They are imminently teachable with clear arrangement and careful teaching instructions. The materials lack a great deal in visual appeal.

THAI
Brown, Reading and Writing

Brown, J. Marvin. AUA Language Center Thai Course.
Reading and Writing Text. 2 volumes: Mostly Reading and Mostly Writing. Bangkok, Thailand:
American University Alumni Association Language
Center, 1979.

Specific language/dialect taught: Standard Thai

Type of text: Basic level teaching materials

Publication information: Published in Thailand, but distributed in the U.S. by Cornell University Southeast Asia Program at $5/book, and readily available in foreign language bookstores. Copy at CAL.

Intended users: Students who already have a knowledge of spoken Thai, and with any one of three goals in mind: to decipher Thai (signs, dictionaries, etc.);
to pass the Prathom 4 test (which enables foreigners to teach in Thailand);
and to actually read Thai (newspapers, books, magazines, etc.)

Format: Books

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: phonetic

Presentation of language: AUA transcription system for Thai used

Physical quality of book: fine quality paperback

Editorial quality of target language: Excellent; script is very clear

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text:

Text presents the entire system of writing in small steps (60 short lessons), with reading and writing practice on each step. A typical lesson appears on two pages: a vertical page (in reading volume) with explanations and ex-
(in writing volume) with practice in copying new letters at left and from memory at right. The two pages have the same page numbers.

Vocabulary areas covered: Vocabulary areas geared toward three types of users (see above). Texts range from The Three Bears to a business letter to newspaper or journal articles.

General comments: These two books are not designed to be used individually.
They are separated into 2 volumes simply because the reading pages are re-useable while the writing pages are not. Much of the vocabulary for the reading texts is found only in the workbook. For those who have not learned the AUA transcription system for Thai, a section is provided to learn it here through self-study. Without knowledge of this system, the book is not usable.

Specific language/dialect taught: Thai, dialect unspecified

Type of text: Basic level teaching material

Publication information: 1985 price, $3.95. Copy at CAL.

Intended users: the English-speaking traveller in Thailand

Format: book

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: n/a

Presentation of language: Thai words and phrases presented in Roman alphabet transcription and in Thai alphabet as well.

Physical quality of book: good quality small paperback, beautifully printed. pocket sized

Editorial quality of target language: very good; Thai script poor quality

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text: [94pp]

Short introductory chapters on pronunciation and grammar are followed by 10 sections of words and phrases arranged topically, around small talk, accomodation, getting around, food, shopping, health, around town, nature, times and dates, numbers and counting.

Final section contains additional useful words not found in previous 10 sections, arranged in an English-Thai glossary. Blank page for notes in back.

Vocabulary areas covered: 10 general vocabulary areas as noted above. Vocabulary for communication and survival in newcomer situations.

General comments: Topical phrase sections range from 4-20 pages in length. Thai script is used in the topical word and phrase section so the traveller may show the word to a Thai who cannot otherwise understand what he is saying.

Comments: This text is usable to supplement a regular spoken Thai course, but it would not be very effective in developing fluency in reading Thai. It is dated in vocabulary somewhat, and more so in its approach to teaching reading. (Presumably decode at home, read aloud, and translate in class.) This is an assumption based on the format of the book, since no guidelines for teaching it are given.

Comments:

These materials reflect the 1945. They are excellent if you are They do not provide any drill for helping the student to read and understand
They have also been superseded by materials more up-to-date + having a methodology.

THAI
Haas and Subhanka, Spoken Thai

Haas, Mary and Heng R. Subhanka. Spoken Thai,
Books 1 and 2. Ithaca, NY: Spoken Language
Services, Inc., 1978.

Specific language/dialect taught: Thai, modern standard dialect

Type of text: Basic level, self-instructional

Publication information: Initially prepared and published for the armed forces by the Linguistic Society of America in 1945. The 1978 Spoken Language Services edition available at $10/volume. [PL4163.H3166] Copies at CAL.

Intended users: Beginning students of Thai, self-instructional

Format: 2 books

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: structural

Presentation of language: No Thai symbols are used, lessons presented entirely in transcription.

Physical quality of book: Fine quality softbound.

Editorial quality of target language: Excellent

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text: [701pp in 2 v.]

Divided into five parts, each containing five learning units and one review unit. Each unit typically contains the following sections:

- A. Basic Sentences (often with pronunciation hints and pronunciation drills)
- B. Word Study
- C. Review of Basic Sentences
- D. Listening In
- E. Conversation
- F. Appendix--Supplementary Vocabularies, Thai-English, English-Thai, approximately 2500 entries.

Vocabulary areas covered: Vocabulary for "Newcomer Situations", mainly meeting basic needs (such as Getting a Passport), but with some culturally oriented situations as well.

General comments: Pronunciation, completion, substitution, multiple choice, true and false, response, and translation drills and exercises included.

Specific language/dialect taught: Thai, dialect not specified

Type of text: Specialized Pedagogical, Reader

Publication information: Out of print, [PL4165.H6]

Intended users: for the non-Thai with little knowledge of the spoken language

Format: n/a

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: traditional

Presentation of language: Thai script and romanization

Physical quality of book: n/a

Editorial quality of target language: very good

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text:
[35pp]

- I. Introduction: Characteristics of Thai; System of Romanization used and tones.
- II. 14 lessons present vowels, consonants, tone indicators, endings, pitches, numerals and dates.
- III. Three practice sections provide Thai text romanization and English translation (except the first which presents consonants with romanization).

Vocabulary areas covered: Wholly non-specific. The book is not concerned with the meanings of words and whatever vocabulary is used is purely to illustrate.

General comments: The transcription system has some unusual symbol:sound relationships; i.e., unaspirated p is written bh, etc.

Palmer, Dialog Book A

Palmer, Adrian S. AUA Language Center Thai Course,
Dialog Book A. Small Talk. Edited by J. Marvin
Brown. Bangkok, Thailand: AUA Language Center, 1974.

Specific language/dialect taught: Thai

Type of text: Basic level teaching materials

Publication information: Part I of what is intended to be a 5-part series (only 2 are completed). Published in Bangkok, distributed by Cornell University Southeast Asia Program at $5. Copy at CAL.

Intended users: Intermediate students of Thai

Format: Book with cassettes

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: Audio-lingual

Presentation of Language: Dialog and drills appear in Thai script, Roman transcription and English translation.

Physical quality of book: fine quality paperback

Editorial quality of target language: Excellent

Editorial quality of English: Excellent overall, yet one wonders about the usefulness of including as a "compliment" in the Polite Expressions Section, "You're so pretty today, I hardly recognized you."

Overall organization of text:

Organized around three levels of "small talk": meeting people, getting to know them, and exchanging remarks with them.

Formal parts are: I. Questions
II. Polite Expressions
III. Remarks

Dialogs are presented along with pictures, cultural notes and brief comments on individual dialogs, including vocabulary and notes. Each dialog is followed by two substitution drills which appear in Thai writing, transcription and English translation.

Vocabulary areas covered: General small talk: greetings, apologies, thank yous, compliments, invitations, questions about age, occupation, family etc., and remarks about the weather, news, traffic, etc.

General comments: The dialog books are designed to be used following Books 1 and 2 of the AUA Thai Course, and either to follow or be used simultaneously with Book 3. Intended as a prerequisite to all later dialog books.

Comments: _____

This well-designed book provides ways to deal linguistically with everyday situations in Thailand. It has no reading component.

No special effort is made to teach grammar, nor does it deal directly with pronunciation problems. However, it does an excellent job of presenting linguistic and non-linguistic material necessary for appropriate linguistic behavior.

Palmer, Dialog Book B

Palmer, Adrian S. AUA Language Center Thai Course, Dialog Book B. Getting Help with Your Thai. Edited by J. Marvin Brown. Bangkok, Thailand: The American University Alumni Association Language Center, 1977

Specific language/dialect taught: Standard Thai

Type of text: Basic Level Teaching Materials

Publication information: Published in Bangkok, Thailand, distributed in the US by Cornell University's Southeast Asia Program at $5. Copy at CAL.

Intended users: Intermediate students of Thai

Format: Book with cassettes.

Overall grammatical/pedagogical approach: Audio-lingual

Presentation of Language: The dialog and drills are in Thai script and English translation, as well as transcription into the Roman alphabet.

Physical quality of book: fine quality paperback

Editorial quality of target language: Excellent

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text:

Three parts:

- I. Getting Help as You Talk
- II. Getting Help from Teachers and Friends
- III. Thai-English Glossary

Basic teaching unit is a dialog and two substitution drills, with accompanying vocabulary and notes.

Vocabulary areas covered: Non-specific, examples are wholly to illustrate how to ask for help in speaking Thai in the course of a conversation. Thus, structure is not concerned with the content of a dialog, but with interruptions in the course of a dialog. The student interrupts himself or the Thai speaker to ask for help. In some cases, the Thai speaker interrupts to offer help.

General comments: Dialog Books are designed for use with the AUA Thai Course as a whole, to follow Books 1 and 2, and to follow or be used simultaneously with Book 3. Lessons vary considerably in length--from one pair of facing pages to 17 pages.

Comments: _____

These texts have been generally successful in teaching students to deal with the structural features of Thai. They do not deal with functions as such. By controlling the language heard and used they do not develop the ability to cope with material above the student's momentary level. They lack a great deal in visual appeal.

Comments: _____

A fundamental tenet of the audio-lingual approach (on which these texts are based) is ~~the assumption~~ that language can be taught effectively by presenting materials according to relative difficulty, and restricting all classroom activity to repeating the materials until they become habitual (automatic). Since the student has little or no input in what he/she learns or in how classroom activity is carried on, she/he has little opportunity to learn coping skills or to acquire language since she/he is presented with limited "comprehensible input".

Comments:

Advanced students will find that these materials are rewarding in two ways: (1) they help develop the reading skills, and (2) they provide a wide variety of materials about Thai culture. The royal language (rachasap) of Thai presents students who want to read further into Thai history, literature, and religion with a formidable barrier, which this text helps to overcome. Since these materials are grouped by subject matter, students can choose to read only those materials of particular interest to them.

Comments:

The Thai sound system offers too much difficulty to the native speaker of English for a student course like this to work. The writer is aware of this and provides the solutions in Thai orthography which one can show to the Thai speaker, when one is not understood.

Comments: _____

In order to use these materials beginning students would need ongoing instruction in reading Thai orthography. Advanced or refresher students who read Thai (only part of the total) can make very effective use of the materials for self-study or in classes. Students who learn to speak using materials in Thai orthography usually acquire better pronunciation, although it does impose an initial burden on them. The original intention of the author was to provide teaching materials; however, the materials can be used for pedagogical reference or linguistic study.

The materials provide an excellent description of the "wide range of practical grammar patterns and vocabulary that make for functional fluency". Many but not all of the grammatical patterns of Thai are covered.

Comments: The purpose of this text was to present an outline of the main structural features of Standard Spoken Thai. The author succeeds admirably in this purpose. No mention is made of student use, and it was clearly not the author's intention to make his text easily usable by students, since it is couched in highly esoteric language derived from a particular school of linguistics (item-and-arrangement).

The book is replete with interesting and accurate (in the main) information about Thai structure. It also has excellent and nearly exhaustive, well-organized lists of vocabulary items found in no other book. Persons interested in Thai grammar will find much to examine. Students with guidance from linguistically sophisticated instructors can profit from this book.

- This is an excellent Thai-English dictionary for students. I have used it for 20 years and have found it to contain most of the vocabulary students need and to be almost free of errors.
- Students can begin to use it as soon as they have some proficiency in reading Thai. Although it was printed more than 20 years ago, it lacks only that vocabulary relating to recent developments in technology.

Editorial quality of target language: excellent

Editorial quality of English: Excellent

Overall organization of text:

[xii, 1774pp] [approximately 37,000 entries, including derivatives]

Thai-English

Entries arranged alphabetically according to the system used by the Royal Academy Dictionary, consonants taking precedence over vowels. Derivative words and expressions included. Entries are in Thai script, with Romanization, and parts of speech.

Parentheses in entries indicate (1) part of speech; (2) an alternative to the main translation introduced by the word "or"; (3) the preposition or alternate prepositions where the verb is also commonly used without prepositions; (4) explanations of the entry not essential to the translation; (5) pronouns whose form is variable; and (6) whether word is slang, vulgar, royal, etc.

Vocabulary areas covered: n/a

General comments: British English spelling is used rather than American, except for words and phrases which are particularly American such as "movie theater".
